Marita has 20 years experience as a planner/landscape architect, developing and managing business for HNTB's Washington DC urban planning practice and the ecological design firm Andropogon in Philadelphia. Her work has focused on creating green infrastructure for urban communities, with projects such as the Complete Streets Initiative in San Antonio TX, Anacostia Waterfront Initiative in Washington DC, Central Delaware Waterfront in Philadelphia and Three Rivers Park in Pittsburgh.

Marita served six years as a member of USGBC's Sustainable Sites technical advisory group, assisting with LEED 2009 product development. She is involved with USGBC to advance livable, sustainable communities through public policy creation, ecological design and supporting metrics. Though a relatively recent (8 years) member of USGBC, she has been involved fulltime in green building and site design + advocacy since 1982.
